Qing-Qin (Family Affection) Scholarship Application Guidelines

Department of Nursing, College of Medicine, National Cheng Kung University

I. Purpose

This scholarship is established by the donor in gratitude for the care and support received from their elders. Named “Qing-Qin” (a homophone of family affection in Chinese), the scholarship aims to encourage students from financially disadvantaged backgrounds or those whose families have encountered unexpected hardships to continue pursuing their studies with dedication. These guidelines are therefore formulated accordingly.

II. Eligibility: All students of the Department (including international students) whose average academic grade in the previous semester is 75 or above may apply, provided that they meet at least ONE of the following conditions:

1. The applicant’s family has experienced a major incident (e.g., the death of a parent or a parent suffering from a serious illness that results in financial hardship).
2. A lineal relative or sibling has a long-term serious illness that affects the family’s financial situation.
3. The applicant’s parents (or legal guardians) are incapacitated and unable to support the family financially.
4. The applicant’s parents (or legal guardians) are involuntarily unemployed and the family is experiencing genuine financial difficulty.
5. Other circumstances that have led to financial hardship in the family.

III. Quota: 1/semester (If not awarded this semester, the quota will be kept to the following academic year)

IV. Amount: NT$ 5,000

V. Application Period:

1. Applying one time per semester
2. Applicants shall apply to the department office directly after recommended by their mentors.

VI. Required Documents:

1. Application Form
2. An original copy of household registration transcript (or a copy of the passport)
3. A copy of the transcript last semester
4. A copy of Student ID card
5. Priority will be given to students from low- or middle-income households, or those with a certificate of financial hardship
6. Other supporting documents (e.g. a certificate of teaching)

VII. Reviewing Guidelines

1. The evaluation will be conducted by the department’s faculty, convened by the Student Affairs Committee.
2. First-time applicants will be given priority. For repeat applicants, consideration will be given at the committee’s discretion based on the applicant’s current circumstances.
